Along with less snow and blooming crocuses, another sign of winter's retreat is the spring issue of the Canadian Geriatrics Journal. We are pleased to present a series of articles that investigate gerontological issues in a series of different environments including acute care, the classroom, and the ambulance bay.

Dr. McAiney has performed a detailed examination of the prevalence of delirium in a hospital setting. Hirst et al. have studied the amount of geriatric content in Canadian nursing and social work degree programs. A narrative systematic review of the concept of frailty in the prehospital setting is presented by Goldstein et al.

We hope you enjoy our spring issue!
